

ABSTRACT

The present invention discloses a communication network system. The communication network system includes a message routing means
5 for controlling and delivering a telephonic message to a plurality of destinations. The network communication system further includes a database for providing an unified access number and a forwarding destination number to the message routing means for forwarding a telephone message sent to the unified access number to the forwarding
10 destination number. And, the database further includes a user interface means for a telephone user to edit the unified access number and the forwarding destination number to the database.